

TWO AMERICANS UNDER MEXICAN GUARD "VANISH"

Newspaper Man and Friend
Believed to Have Been Slain in Mountains.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 30.—Two Americans, P. W. Harwood, an Oakland newspaper man, and Morton Miller, were led out from Tijuana, Mexico, shortly before midnight on Wednesday under a guard of Mexican Federal soldiers and are now believed to be lying dead in the mountains a few miles south of the line, victims of the "fugitive law." Three miles south of the border Harwood managed to slip a note to a Mexican who passed them on the road. The note was addressed to a San Diego newspaper man.

According to the Mexican who mailed the letter, the guard of six soldiers carried no supplies, and aside from a small blanket which one of the Americans had there was no covering. This has convinced United States officials that the prisoners were not being taken to Ensenada for trial, as the Mexicans asserted, but were being led beyond into the mountains where they would be subjected to the law of "la fuga," out of sight of Americans on this side of the national line.

Mexican authorities in Tijuana refused to say anything regarding the capture of the Americans, but it is known the Federal authorities believe them to be leaders of a band of outlaws planning to overthrow the Federal power in Lower California.

United States customs and immigration men say the Americans are smugglers, and hold to this view in spite of the letter received here from Harwood.

Harwood a Newspaper Man in Oakland.

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 30.—R. W. Harwood, mentioned in despatches from San Diego as having been shot by Mexican Federal soldiers, formerly worked on newspapers in this city. His parents live in Sutter City, this State. The last heard of him by friends here was from Los Angeles.

The Constitution adopted by Parliament made no provision for any state religion, declaring that "citizens shall have freedom of religion," but for some months a Confucian revival movement has been in evidence, and a league was formed by representatives, not only of Christianity but of
